Editorial

Dear Colleagues,

It is our great pleasure to publish the first issue of CSMJ this year. As you well know, CSMJ has been indexed in several indexes including DOAJ, J-Gate, Türk Medline, EBSCO Central & Eastern European Academic Source and Gale on the third year of its' publication. This success has been achieved with your valuable and continuous support.

In this first issue of 2024, you can read the interesting review about the role of fascia in both musculoskeletal function and myofascial pain syndrome. You can read four different original articles in this issue. The first article is an epidemiological research study that evaluated the data of HIV patients during the pandemics. The second original article in this issue is about the evaluation of the association between iron deficiency anemia and febrile seizures in children. This topic has been reported to be controversial and this study has also yielded similar results. The other study aims to establish the quality of life, prevalence of depression in older adults. And the last study is about the comparison of optic nerve sheath diameter by ultrasonography for prediction of increased intracranial pressure in two different anesthesia methods in patients at reverse Trendelenburg position. You can also read an interesting and rare case report about acute suppurative parotitis in a septic neonate.

I think that all the articles and case report will be helpful for both your routine daily practice and also for future studies. We want to continue to discuss different important topics in future issues of CSMJ with your support.
